

Charley White Stops Richie Mitchell in the 10th Round of Sensational Battle at the Garden

Chicago Boxer Drops Opponent 5 Times in Fierce Encounter

Waukegan Boy Shows Undying Aggressiveness and Apparently Has Slight Lead Until Final Round; Shugrue Wins Over Flores in Semi-Final Bout

By Jack Lawrence

In one of the fiercest encounters ever seen at Madison Square Garden, Charley White, of Chicago, knocked out Richie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, last night after 2 minutes and 40 seconds of fighting in the tenth round of a scheduled to be a fifteen-round battle. Until the final left hook delivered in the closing seconds of that riotous tenth round, it seemed anybody's fight. Mitchell had taken the count in the first, the ninth and three times in the tenth, but even when he went down for the last time he was full of fight, gameness and undying aggressiveness.

The tenth was wild and wicked from the first tap of the gong, and the tide flowed toward Mitchell. He was a victory toward White. They were mixing matters long in a session when a left-handed shot the law dropped Mitchell to his knees. The blood was trickling from his nose at this time and there was a winking in his blue eyes, but he was no fear or thought of defeat in his heart. He watched the referee kept him on the count, and he got up just about in the second time in the tenth. The fight was in sight right then, although Mitchell, drunk and dizzy, was up for the last time with his eyes driving vaguely toward White's end came quickly, although it was not prolonged had not any Hale, the referee, been wise enough to step in when he saw the two men were about to exchange blows. Both Mitchell and White weighed 137 pounds.

In a furious semi-final Johnny Shugrue, of Jersey City, outpointed Elinor Flores, of Manila, in twelve ferocious rounds. This match was as much of a thriller as the final. Mitchell and White began their first round with a good deal of caution, but it was not long before all this reserve was cast to the four or more winds. They met in the middle of the round and fought lightly for an opening, but appeared to have a great deal of respect for the other, but this was not the case. White, who was a bit of a showman, turned a stream of words in Charley's direction, and it was not long before he decided to go and he did. He let his right hand immediately after he noticed the tide flowing from his own side. It was an unfamiliar sight, and it disturbed him.

He shot that White left go down Mitchell on the chin and sent him down to his knees, where he remained in a quiet repose until Charley White had counted him out. White had a great opportunity to wind up the festivities and end the hard-working boxing report, but he refused to take the time at the head, and stood back, waiting for something or other to be should have been hard at work.

Mitchell Comes Back

The result of this hesitation was that Richie Mitchell weathered the storm in fairly good shape and came up for the second round with a determined look in his blue eyes. The first thing that White was to open a data under Charley White's right hand that showed for the rest of the evening. This tangible evidence of his ability appeared to spur Mitchell and he immediately started to make his own tide flow from his own side. White in particular and Ike Dorgan in general.

In that second round White gave the best exhibition of a man knocked out in his feet, that we have ever seen. He wheeled and reeled under the ring under the steadily increasing force of Mitchell's attack, but he refused to permit his knees to touch the floor.

There was a reminiscent turn of mind about the greatest first round of the world war saw, fought between Mitchell and Benny Leonard nearly two years ago. That round had hardly had more than a few minutes of the early chapters in last night's encounter. They throbbed with action.

It was White's left hand that brought Mitchell down in the first round and it was that same left hand that was the able weapon that bothered Mitchell throughout the fight, but Richie's was not always a source of worry for White, who took many a heavy blow on the chin from it.

Every round was filled with dynamic action and there were numerous occasions when both fighters appeared to be on the threshold of a Turkish bath. Apparently no love lost between the two, as they frequently seemed to go right on milling about the bell had rung in the evening. Mitchell patted White properly on the back and left hooks to the head, but the eighth was Mitchell's, but the eighth was Mitchell's.

The ninth was one of the greatest ever fought in Madison Square Garden. Early in this session White was some hard clips on the mustache and he launched an attack that sent Mitchell down for the count nine.

In the tenth the Milwaukee battler was down for three counts of the same kind, each one being the result of a left hook.

Old Wynnewood Barely Lasts To Save Bacon

Lang Has to Kick Out 1 to 2 Favorite to Win Le Barre Purse at Jefferson Park

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—The Jefferson Park course today had dried out to some semblance of reason, and as a result the long suffering public had an opportunity to cash a bet or two. Among the winning favorites was Mrs. T. O. Webber's Wynnewood, the consistent old black gelding, who accounted for the feature event, the La Barre Purse, at a mile and a sixteenth. Wynnewood's victory did not occasion the usual shouting, for he stuck above his field as far as that, and seemed a most liberal price. But he did not win like any good 1 to 2 shot. Chick Lang, indeed, had to kick out the old fellow at the end to withstand the gallant charge of Richelieu. Wynnewood had quite a chase, but after a short run, the early pacemaker, this effort told at the end. Richelieu meanwhile rated off the early pace and was fresh and strong for a sensational run when Roehm called upon him after turning for home. Pancho also closed with a rush, and in another stride would have beaten Richelieu out of the place.

Ohio Wesleyan Men Declared Ineligible By Conference A. A.

BERLIN, Ohio, Dec. 15.—Eight Ohio Wesleyan University athletes were declared permanently ineligible to participate in Ohio Conference athletic activities for "receiving $250 annually from an athletic loan fund." It was announced today by E. W. Miller, secretary of the conference. Among those named are Olan Smith, 1922 football captain, and Lingal Winters, captain-elect of the 1923 eleven.

In making the announcement Miller made public the official minutes of the athletic meeting of the conference held at Columbus Monday, when Ohio Wesleyan was accused of offering scholarships and loans to members of the football team. Wesleyan representatives admitted that the loans had been continued and declared they considered themselves bound by a four-year promise to the men, according to the minutes.

As a result of the charges Miami, Cincinnati, Case and Denison severed football relations with Wesleyan. Wesleyan should itself have declared these men ineligible, and it takes action only at the suggestion of the conference representative with the understanding that it may help him in cleaning up the situation there," the minutes continue.

Wesleyan officials had announced that all athletes against whom accusations had been made would be withheld from all athletic competition.

Jones Will Coach Yale Eleven Next Year, Says Mallory

William N. Mallory, captain of the Yale varsity football team, at a gathering of Yale men in Nick Roberts's barn at Montclair last night, said that a committee of five had been appointed to select a coach for the team next year. The committee will select from the best Yale football players of the past. These men will act in an advisory capacity toward next year. Mallory stated positively that "Ted" Jones would be coach of the team again next year. He spoke enthusiastically of Ted Jones's work and said that the utmost confidence was felt in his methods.

Laroch, who was quarterback on the 1916 Yale team, the only Yale eleven that beat Harvard and Princeton, also made a speech, in which he expressed approval of Mallory and "Ted" Jones and said that he had full confidence in the way the new committee would conduct the team. Others who made speeches were: Russell C. Neidinger, Chas. O'Hearn, and Franklin Field. The Yale Alumni Association, of Montclair and vicinity, which conducted the affair, passed two resolutions, in which they declared their full confidence in Captain Mallory, his team, "Ted" Jones and whatever system they might devise. The other resolutions offered by President Roberts was to the effect that there should be separate cheering sections for the Yale alumni.

Pennsylvania Swimmers Defeat City College Mermen, 42 to 20

In the first intercollegiate swimming meet of the winter held in this fair metropolis, the Pennsylvania mermen defeated the City College team in the St. Nicholas Heights tank last night by the score of 42 to 20. This victory for the sons of William Penn was not unexpected, but the Lavender got some consolation out of the evening by trouncing the visitors in the water polo contest by 31 to 21.

Coach Mackenzie's Lavender team performed better than it had hoped in scoring twenty points against the strong aggregation from the Quaker City. That the City College swimmers piled up twenty points was due to the superior performance of Joseph and Rabinowitz.

Joseph was looked upon as a strong contender in this event, but the fine showing of Rabinowitz was as unexpected as it was pleasing to the local rooters.

This was the first swimming meet held under the changed rules whereby the plunge for distance has been abolished and the 220-yard swim changed to the quarter-mile distance. Also the 100-yard back stroke and 200-yard breast stroke events were contested as called for under the new program. Spectators and competitors agreed that the change in program provided a better balance in meet and a more interesting spectacle.

Holt was the star for Penn, taking first place in the 50- and the 100-yard swims. The visitors carried off all first places in the races, including the 400-foot relay. It was only in the fancy dive that the Lavender managed to romp home ahead.

Buddie Kean Wins Feature On Cuban Track

Winner Comes From Behind to Beat Chief Sponsor in Feature at Havana

HAVANA, Dec. 15.—W. A. McKintyre's plater Buddie Kean showed a good performance in the six-furlong sprint this afternoon when he came from a long way back in the stretch run and beat out Chief Sponsor in his last mount strides.
